FAIR BAVEN.

The schooner Pierce of Wellfleet Mass., which Captain H. Seeley charport, carried a load of ice to Crisfield. Md., and is now in Hampton Roads loading the oysters. Captain Seeley is down buying the cargo, a small portion of which are opening stock. The cargo is for J. E. Bishop & Co. The vesse is expected here next week and will he the first load of plants to arrive. On the evening of March 20 Rev. D. N. Griffin of Hamden will lecture under the auspices of the Ladles' Ald society at the East Pearl street M. E. church on "The Old Newgate Prison." It will be illustrated with stereopticon views.

The Fair Haven and Westville road has just received eight new electric cars at their shops on Grand avenue and as soon as they are "wired up" will be placed on the line. There are four more of these cars to be delivered. They were built at Wilmington, Del., are of the same pattern as those now running and first class in every respect. The company has also ordered fourteen open cars. Six of the best of the horse cars have been fitted up electrically and two of the open cars are being similarly equipped.

Lee Mitchell, who read suitable Scripture selections, made appropriate and comforting remarks and offered prayer. The remains rested in a handsome broadcloth casket with oxidized silver handles. There was a profusion of beautiful floral offerings, in-cluding Easter illes, callas, roses and Roman hyacinths. At the head of the casket a picture of Mr. Goodale was draped with black, looped with hyacinths. Many relatives from Niantic, Hartford, Wallingford, Bridgeport, and Montowese were present. Lucius Ludington, Zebulon Rowe, Isaac Potter, E. M. Woodward, Thomas Bishop and James Nelson were the bearers, and the interment was in Fair Haven cemetery. H. W. Crawford was in charge.

Berlin's Board of Trade.

March 13.-Interest in the newly or ganized board of trade is quite general. A special meeting with a banquet will be held Monday evening, April 1, at which time the Hon. N. D. Sperry of New Haven will be present and give a talk on the benefits of such an ant intercourse and amiable converse organization to a town. About forty The most conspicuous party in the car of the business men of the town have become members. It is expected that at this meeting the president, N. Albert Hooker of the Hooker Carriage company, New Haven, and other manufacturers of the town will have many propositions to offer for the commercial advancement of the place.

ES-WELLS, Jessey City, N. Jr. BY SEA IS THE SAFEST WAY.

GETTING AWAY FROM GREECE tered to bring oyster plants to this HARDER WORK THAN REACHING IT

> If One Takes to the Railroad He is Detain ed for Hours at One Station and is in Addition Compelled to Endure the Companionship of Undesirable Persons.

Brindisi, Italy, Feb. 22. To the Editor of the Journal and Couries Getting away from Greece is far more of a performance than reaching it You can only do it by sea any way; and just now the only safe sea-way is by Patras to Brindisi by the little Italian steamer which runs to and fro. The large steamers all reach Greece from Constantinople, and all, owing to the cholera scare, are subject to quarantine. From Athens to Patras is only 137 miles by rail, but it takes the train seven and a half hours to run the distance. There is no reason why the train should go so slowly; nor why the boat should not start before 10 p. m., nor why it should stop four hours at Corfu when one would do; nor why it should reach Brindisi at half-past one at night, especially when all trains leave Brindisi at six in the morning, thus leaving those who are going straight on with five of the most unomfortable hours of the night on their hands, and nothing to do but to walk about the town in the darkness, or to sit in silent misery around the hotel fire. No one could possibly be hired to and in a language that has decent an stay on the miserable boat a moment longer than actually necessary. The best way to do it is to sit up till the boat lands, then take a room in this very hotel and go to bed, though you lose a day by doing so. Greek rallroads are run on Greek ideas. One Greek idea is to divide a car into two rooms and to run a bench where the doors come in. If your seat happens to be in the corner, or next the corner, you had better have your legs cut off to begin with, or Induce your neighbor to have the operation performed on himself, for there is no possible space about the corner for over two legs. In fact the only places where a person with legs can sit is midway between where, for a small space, legs are not skewed in from the adjoining corners. Parties preferring to keep their legs will find them painfully cramped, and twisted all out of shape long before the journey is ended. Th Greek idea is presumably that with knees and noses directed to a common center, there will easily spring pleas not only filled her side full, but overflowed several pairs of adjoining knees Somebody whispered that she was the discharged duenna of the "Turkish ambassadors' harem." She had with her her maid, whose business it was to stuff her noble mistress with all man ner of sweets and to wash her noble mistress' fingers when the sweets stuck them together. The ex-duenna was young; but she had spread far beyond all the boundaries of beauty. She tion. For connections east of Saybrook Junction the Telephone company is still preserved a leer in her large, working through Norwich and New round, pig-eye; and there were craters here and there in the voluminous folds of her visage which marked the sites of ancient dimples. Her digesting organs were evidently unimpaired; as before we reached Patras she must have con sumed cakes and candies enough to have started a flourishing pastry shop. Another incident of the trip was funeral party which occupied a similar coom in an adjoining second-class car riage. The party consisted of a young woman the especially bereaved: oung man, probably her husband; another equally young man; a large as-sortment of women, old and young and the corpse, a baby, done up into arge, round, most fearful and repulsive bundle by all the family rags and castoff clothing. The party entered their room with shrill howls and chattering shricks, and kept up the deafening din for five mortal hours while passing the awful bundle from lap to lap. Nowhere but in Greece could railroad or health officials allow such an offensive and noxious performance. The Greeks oust be endowed with extraordinary mortuary lung power, or the party would have yelled itself to death long pefore it reached its destination. As it was, the young woman, who had taken the principal part in the affair fainted dead away after alighting, and so absorbed the attention of all concerned that only as the train was starting the second young man remembered the precious bundle, hopped back into the > years nor his relation to the corpse gave permission. Truly the modern Greeks are queer specimens! At Patras miseries begin again. Cook's man marshals you into an awkward squad and marches you to dinner. After dinner ranks are reformed; you are headed for the wharf; you are dumped into boats; you are rowed in the darkness to a dark hulk in the distance; you are boosted on deck, and age inflicted injuries which probably there you are left alone to grope further along in your history. You may have a berth; you may not. Your luggage may be on board; it may not. All depends on that rascally Cook's man of Patras, whose victims, if they ever catch him where law and order prevall, and plain English is understood and spoken, will lynch him into a thousand bits, each bit a bloody sacrifice to outraged truth and incensed virtue. With what awful lies he assures you he to-day. has secured for your sole occupancy the very best stateroom on the ship, and how he tells you the amount it has cost him in specie to do so, to which amount your "lordship" may be inclined to add a slight "douceur" in re cognition of his energetic success, though no "Cook" man ever asks a pen-

car and rescued it with hardly a sec-

sent him spinning like a badly spun

ening, after he has left you; when you find you are one of four in the worst stateroom of the whole Mediterranean sea, wherein there is but one towel, one bowl, one pitcher, and everything else n single profusion with the exception of the fleas and the bed-bugs. But ion't mind.

Wait till the boat has started. Then get the head steward into a corner and show him a ten franc piece. Dollars to oughnuts that, in spite of the crowd te has a room in reserve for just such ases of bribery and corruption. The nteresting questions are: how much of that ten franc piece goes to the Cook man at Patras; how much of the Cook man's illegal gains goes to the head steward, and how much the two have to "divy" with the official of the steamship company. In a country where such petty felonies. Things are understood and openly recognized, if not lauded. There should be no difficulty in ascertaining the exact facts of each transaction, as well for encouragement as for information.

There was a Cook man of Patras, Whose make up was lying and brass. He lied right along, In sunshine and storm, Till now in a shrine,

With Greek honors divine, He's fed on Ambrosial hash He is sure to be cannonized.

It is comforting to get back once more o terra firma. A country whose mail arrive but twice a week, and are de pendent upon the caprices of Neptune cannot be called terra firma, but is affoat. Greece is terra insulata. It pleasant to walk about even such as uninteresting town as Brindisi and sethe names of the streets and the sign of the shops in customary lettering proper relation to the other language of Europe. It is delightful to find a London "Times" but three days old Paris newspapers but two days old and local papers which you can read with out having your ideas of the fitness of languages upset and rasped. When you are in Athens and with enthusiastic scholars you half accept their state ments and try to think, as they are try ng to think, that classic Greek classic Greece may be restored. So soon as away from their influence you know it is all nonsense, and that the sooner Greece drops the past and ac-

and looks to the west, the better for people and country. To be alive one must live in the present and with it. The study of ancient manners, customs and monuments ! valuable just so far as it can make ou resent better, nobler, more beautiful If it halt us for an instant, it should be discarded as old shoes and worn out garments are discarded. If the past cannot help us more rapidly towards he goal of our purest desires and hopes were best forgotten. To sigh imes that are passed and wish their return is senile weakness. To know how the past has contributed to the resent is true knowledge. To know how the present will contribute to a more glorious future is not only knowledge, but trust, hope, faith. A true knowledge of good things will always help man along. An affected knowldge of useless things can be of no ad-antage. PERIANDER, vantage.

The Massachusetts Charitable Mechanic Association Exposition.

The Mussachusetts Charitable Me chanic association was organized in 1795. It began to give "expositions" in small way as early as 1820, and since 1840 those expositions have been held about once in three years, constantly increasing in extent and interest. This is the "triennial" year, and the exhibition next October and November will be the nineteenth.

The association has never failed to give an exhibition attractive to the public. That of 1892 was visited by nearly half a million of people. There can be no doubt that 1895 will witnes an equal success.

Curtain Caught Fire.

There was a slight fire in Miss Julia Twining's house at 424 Prospect street, which called out the fire department about 9 o'clock yesterday morning. A curtain in the bathroom of the house was blown against a gas blaze and set afire. The fire communicated to a partition and baffled the fire department for some time. Loss about $300.

PASSED AWAY.

Death of William Whitmore, a Well Known Contracting Mason-One of the City's Old and Esteemed Res'dents.

The friends and former business as sociates of William Whitmore will regret to learn of his swiden death Tues day by apoplexy at his home, 27 Edge wood avenue. He was born in Maro mas, Conn., November 12, 1808, and remained there until the age of fifteen In the spring of 1824 he commenced the arduous and long period of apond to spare. Just as the train was prenticeship customary in those days disappearing a stalwart Amazonian and his severe efforts during that mourner gave a small boy a cuff that period of seven years and his extraor dinary activity during the subsequen top; all because he was lamenting at top; all because he was lamenting at ten years, undoubtedly did much to an amateur rate to which neither his break down a constitution which had probably equipped him to become a centenarian. As a contracting mason he constructed many buildings in and about New Haven, among which are the former Second Methodist church on St. John street, the English Hall building. State and Court streets, and the "Ames place" near Woodmont.

A severe fall through a building contributed much toward the termina tion of his career as a contractor, and doubtless shortened his life. Inflexible integrity, unreserved generosity and a loving heart, were some of the good qualities which endeared him to his family and friends. He leaves a wife, one daughter and a grandson, Mr. Wallace Buel.

The funeral services will take place at 27 Edgewood avenue at 2:30 p. m

ASTHMA.

In the wide field of medicine nothing is more distressing to the sufferer than a severe attack of spasmodic Asthum, Occasionally, and wholly without warning, in the midst of spparent health, difficulty of breathing comes on, and for many minutes, sometimes indeed for hours, the patient gasps and fights for breath; his frame outverts, his countenance is outhed in moisture, distress of the most painful character takes possession of him. Anyone who had never seen a similar attack would fear that death must be at him. The sufferer who has had other attacks is not alterned. After a time breathing becomes natural, but before that happy state is reached he suffers torment.

"Kuinow's Anti-Asthumatic."

"Kutnow's Anti-Asthmatic Powder or Cigarettes" Will give the desired relief. If a patient has an attack on the street he can ward off the blow by lighting one of the cigarettes, and, after deeply inhaling the smoke, will breathe as freely as usual.
